

“I attended three of Pat LaDouceur’s free lunchtime seminars for parents over the past several months. These seminars focus on teens who struggle with academic achievement. Some of the topics were procrastination, dealing with stress, and motivating your child. Pat is knowledgeable, and provides effective tools and strategies that parents can tailor to their individual situation. After each seminar, I walked away feeling like I had some practical methods for dealing with these issues and how they relate to my teen. Pat is a professional who willingly shares her knowledge and expertise in the community. Because of that, she is a great resource for parents, guardians, teachers and other care providers of teens.”
